ELCA Pastor Publishes Book on Baptism

Glenn Borreson, an Evangelical Lutheran Church in America (ELCA) pastor of the La Crosse Area Synod from Holmen, Wisconsin, is the author of a new book on Christian baptism from Infinity Publishing.

Water is the gift of life, and more than that, according to author Glenn Borreson, the waters of Christian baptism bring new meaning and joy to every day we live. Water for Your Soul, Borreson's book from Infinity Publishing, offers readers new insights into the old practice of baptism. The author writes a month's worth of short chapters to help the reader experience how baptism enriches every day of life.

Many Christians appreciate baptism's value for their infant or child; others may be impressed with baptism on the day it happens. But what about baptism and the rest of life? Quoting the great reformer Martin Luther that in baptism Christians have enough to study and practice all their life, Borreson writes 31 chapters to demonstrate how that can happen. With titles like "God Gets Physical," "Are We There Yet," and "Dying to Change," he invites readers to plunge into and experience baptismal spirituality on a daily basis.

This 110-page book with its striking blue water cover will be a spiritual treasury for the baptized, for parents seeking baptism for their children, and seekers who wonder what an ancient rite has to do with modern life.

Glenn L. Borreson was recently senior pastor of Holmen Lutheran Church, Holmen, Wisconsin, a congregation of the Evangelical Lutheran Church in America. He is a past president of the Academy of Parish Clergy and author of four books for Christian ministry. He and his wife Mary have three adult sons and five grandchildren.

Water for Your Soul: Living in Baptism Every Day is available for $10.95 in bookstores or on Infinity Publishing's website at www.bbotw.com.
